Health and Beauty

This year's newest eye-make-up fashion is false eyelashes. These beauty items have been used by known beauties for many years. They are now more natural looking than ever before, and much simpler to use.

Perhaps the biggest difference is that they are now used to add thickness and denseness rather than length.

There are two types to choose from — one comes with an eyelid strip with glue on the underside, tinted sheer plastic on top. The other type comes equipped with a tube of glue — the lashes being attached to the slimmest line of tape.

The choice is up to you, but in any event, you must shorten the eyelashes before you even try them on for size. A "right" and a "left" must be clipped. The shortest lashes will become the inner corner of each strip.

Do all the necessary clipping work away from the eyes — for obvious reasons. Next run a flick of glue along the top of the false eye-lash strip. Working from the inner corner of the eye, press the strip on just a dot above your own lash line.

The result will be instant beauty. You may need to practice a few times to do a perfect job.

About The Home

You have a duty to your family to feed them foods that are wholesome and healthful. These foods need not be the most expensive or take great time and effort to prepare.

In fact — just the opposite is true in most cases — food prepared simply and not over-cooked contain the highest amount of vitamins and minerals.

Wheat is a great source of vitiman B1. In fact, no better source is known than wheat germ for this valuable vitamin. Wheat germ can be added to meat loaf-ground steak patties and dressings. It is delicious as a breakfast cereal—hot or cold.

Fish is an excellent protein and inexpensive, unless you choose the more exotic varities. Remember when cooking all meats that frying and too-fast cooking help kill nutritional benefits.

Always include an assortment of fresh vegetables and fruits and learn the vitamin content so you can insure your family of getting an abundance of the important vitamins from natural sources.

Fresh fruit is a source of quick energy that will not leave you with the let-down feeling following refined sugar products. Also, instead of being harmful to your teeth, as with candy, cakes and pies, fresh fruit is, in almost all cases, beneficial to the teeth.

Butter should be included in all diets except where your doctor has said differently.

Oranges, lemons, and grapefruit are rich in vitamin C — so very important all year-round — but especially during the fall and winter.

COMENT ON SPORTS

By Pete Fritchie

The Milwaukee Braves and the New York Yankees are to meet again in the World Series, which is no news, but the prospect, as we see it is that Milwaukee will defeat the Yanks again, and that is news.

The Braves have too many strong pitchers. There's Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette, Bob Buhl, and other veterans plus three young and promising hurlers brought up this year. The Yanks haven't a staff to match this at the moment.

Whitey Ford may or may not be ready when the World Series play begins October 1st. Don Larson hasn't been able to some around. Only Bob Turley has been a consistant winner this year in quantity. There's Shantz, Sturdivant (another sailing hurler for much of the year) and others, but their consistant performance doesn't match that of Milwaukee.

From the twirling angle, then, one must give the nod to Milwaukee. In the slugging department, things are closer. But the Braves still have Adcock, Mathews, Aaron and a few others who can hit the ball.

Probably they don't match Mantle, Berra, Skowron, Siebern, Bauer, and pinch hitters like Enos Slaughter and Elston Howard — if they don't start. The question is whether New York's potentially more dangerous clutch hitters will be able to pull it off with New York pitching.

The inclination here is to rate pitching more important than hitting in a World Series and the record books will bear out this prediction. On the strength of the Braves' better and healthier pitching staff, one will have to string along with the world champions for another year.

Betting against the Yankees, we might say as a final reminder, has not—however—proven to be a good way to make a living in the last two decades, and so you might tune in on the World Series just the same. The Yankees sometimes make a spectacle of themselves.

Homemakers Items

If you made a list of the "killers" around your home, you would be amazed, say Extension specialists.

Insecticides and other poisonous chemicals stored within a child's reach can bring tragedy, they say. Statistics prove this point. Two out of every 100 persons die each year from accidental poisoning. Of number, every fourth person is between the ages of 1 and 5 years.

The specialists say to check your home now to make sure that all "killers" are stored well out of reach of the children. They suggest some important check points:

Start with the medicine chest. Keep it locked or be sure it is high enough to keep children out. Label all bottles and materials stored there.

Keep cosmetics, soaps, bleaches, polishes and cleaning agents out of reach of small children.

Avoid throwing partially filled containers into waste baskets or trash barrels where children could test for taste.

Keep matches and all inflammable materials well out of reach.

The many "hand floor coverings" now on the market may give rise to some confusion when it comes to choosing one.

Miss Mary B. Settle, home improvement specialist at VPI, says the coverings include such materials as linoleum, asphalt tile, vinyl asbestos tile, rubber tile, vinyl plastics, cork, and ceramic tile. All of the flooring materials can give good service if they are selected with some knowledge of the characteristics of each, are properly installed, and are properly maintained, Miss Settle says.

She has several suggestions for assuring satisfaction from floor coverings. If the floor to be covered is a suspended wood floor or a suspended concrete floor, with no moisture problem, any covering material may be used. The limiting factors will be only your personal preference and cost. The several types of coverings vary considerably in price.

FARM NEWS

FALL CLEAN-UP ADVISED FOR GARDEN INSECT CONTROL

A fall clean-up is in order in the garden as well as in the house.

Dr. J. O. Rowell, entomologist at VPI, says that soon the remaining vegetation in the garden will be killed by frost. Insecticides, sprayers, and dusters can be put away until next spring. However, many garden insects remain in the garden areas over winter, and will start the new infestations next year. So insect control should not stop with the coming of frost.

Dr. Rowell says that fall plowing will turn up and expose insects that normally have protection in the soil. It also buries and destroys insects which live through the winter in debris and crop remains in and around the garden plot.

He also has these other suggestions for insect and disease control and for good gardening, for reference now and next season:

Use fertile, well-drained soil and a good grade fertilizer. Plant crops that are suited to the soil and climate. Keep down weeds and grass. Buy disease-free seed. Buy certified seed where possible. Treat seed with chemicals for protection against decay and damping-off. Buy disease free plants. Be sure they do not have swellings on the roots, cankers on the stems, or spots on the leaves. Grow disease - resistant varieties if available. Resistant varieties are available for only a few diseases of certain crops. Some of the varieties are highly resistant; others give partial protection.

Destroy plants of each annual crop as soon as the harvest is over.

TOO MUCH FAT IN DIETS

Where are we on fats? VPI nutritionists say that while there is no experimental proof that fat directly leads to heart trouble, here is every indication that over-eating does lead to heart trouble. Whether saturated or unsaturated fats are a major item may be disputed, but certainly all evidence points to the advisability of cutting down total fats, especially those not high in vitamin A.

The nutritionists also say that diets high in protein are good, especially when calories are reduced. Part of the diet should be "complete protein" — animal sources.

VPI studies on pro-ddolescent girls for the past three summers indicate that the things protein foods carry make the difference in complete growth and health. If protein is cut, other nutrients are also cut. Nutritionists have said that "generous amounts of protein are the cheapest nutrition insurance we can buy for children."

Of the inter-relationships between diet and disease, the nutritionists have this to say: Most human disease is chemical rather than bacterial, and disturbances come from either excess or deficiency of this chemical balance. Poor diets are often responsible for this puzzling "imbalance." Classic examples are the mental symptoms which were cured when nicotinic acid (niacine) were given, and the disease pellegra was cured. Another is the severe hemorrhagus which were cured by ascorbic acid (vitamin C). The body cells can recover to an amazing extent from chemical upsets when an adequate diet is given.

VPI nutritionists have found that dry milk solids could be increased four times the normal amount and still get a quality product in cuards, breads, cookies, and other cooked foods. For diets low in calcium, this is one easy, economical way to improve them. The nutritionists advise using all types of milk, and not to use dry milk in place of fresh, but in addition to fresh milk. A recent report of dairy products used in Virginia, shows that people in rural areas are slightly more than their city neighbors, but a large part of both groups use below the recommended amounts.

CAREFUL PREPARATION OF TOBACCO FOR MARKET WIL INCREASE PROFITS

Careful preparation of flue-cured tobacco for market has several advantages, says G. R. Mathews, tobacco specialist at VPI.

Tobacco well prepared will bring more money, will compete better in foreign markets, and all segments of the industry will benefit. Furthermore, less of it will go to "stabilization," and the grower will be assured of support prices.

Mathews says to have a comfortable, well-lighted room for sorting and tieing. The room should be free from excessive heat and drying winds, In sorting on the farm, do not mix colors, do not mix thin and heavy leaf in the same piles, and keep all trash and very short leaf out of good grades.

Mixing of tobacco has often resulted in a lower-than-average price for better-than-average tobacco. If you do a hurried job of sorting under poor lights, you will likely have mixed tobacco. Buyers can afford to pay more for uniformly graded unmixed tobacco than for mixed tobacco that requires rehandling.

Tie the tobacco in uniform bundles about the size of a half-dollar. Bundles that are too large can't be properly redried. If too much moisture is left in heads of bundles packed in hogsheads, the tobacco may spoil. Heads should not be capped.

The right moisture content is very important. Leaf should contain enough moisture to make it pliable. Be careful to avoid selling tobacco too high in "order," however, or you may have moldy, sour, or damaged leaf. All buyers are afraid of wet or damaged leaf.

Take every precaution to see that string and other foreign matter is removed from the tobacco before it goes to market. It costs money for the industry to remove foreign matter. These costs are ultimately reflected in prices paid growers.

GOV. ALMOND CITES NEWSPAPER WEEK

Richmond, Oct. 1.- Governor J. Lindsay Almond, Jr., today paid tribute to Virginia's Fourth Estate in a statement calling attention to National Newspaper Week, October 1 to 8. "Events of our time are such that it would be impossible for the average citizen to keep abreast of developments without the benefit of his newspaper," the Governor said.

"In international affairs, in all branches of government, and in the course of business activities there are important happenings every day that affect our lives to some degree."

The Governor complimented the daily and 106 weekly newspapers published in Virginia by saying: "The newspaper delivered to our doors keeps us informed and enables us to formulate intelligent opinions that can be reflected in our vote in elections and in the administration of our personal affairs."

The people of Virginia were urged to join in the celebration of this special week devoted to one of the basic freedoms guaranteed to every citizen. "I am happy to join with the newspapers of Virginia in calling public attention to this very valuable service rendered by the press and to invite all our people to participate in the observance of National Newspaper Week, October 1-8, 1958."

The Governor concluded his statement by saying, "Now, as always, a free and impartial press is an important guardian of our liberty."

The newspapers of Virginia through the Virginia Press Association are joining the press of the nation in the 18th annual observance of National Newspaper Week. The theme for this year's observance is "Your Newspaper Guards Your Freedom." The special week is sponsored annually by Newspaper Association Managers, Inc., a national organization of the executives of state, regional, and national newspaper associations.

PLOW UP TOBACCO STALKS AFTER HARVEST IS OVER

Plowing up all tobacco stubble after harvest is one of the most important steps in the control of nematodes that attack the crop, according to S. B. Fenne, plant pathologist at VPI.

He says that plowing under the stubble is not recommended, since the roots will remain wet and nematodes will not be killed. However, if you expose the roots to the sun and drying winds on the soil surface, many of the nematodes will be killed.

Let the stubble remain exposed for about a week, and then run a light drag harrow over the stubble to knock off the soil and turn over the roots. This will result in much more complete control of nematodes.

After harrowing, the stubble should remain exposed to the sun and drying winds for another week if possible, and then the field prepared for a cover crop. Rye and oats are perhaps the two best materials to use as a cover crop since they are not as badly affected by certain types of nematodes as are the other small grains.

MILK, MILK AND MORE MILK

Eight Virginia Holstein cows have recently won national recognition for production of over 100,000 pounds of milk.

In reporting the recognition, W. S. Griffith, dairy specialist at VPI, poses the question: "Just how much milk is 100,000 pounds of milk?"

It is, he says enough milk to supply a family which uses three quarts of milk a day for 42 years. Each of the eight cows recognized has produced that much milk in its lifetime.

One is owned by L. J. Crowgey, of Wytheville, and produced 117,430 pounds of milk and 4,259 pounds of butterfat in 2,788 days. Hollins College received recognition for another, which produced 104,803 pounds of milk and 3,098 pounds of butterfat in 2,196 days. Another cow, owned by G. L. Bowman, of Boones Mill, produced 103,380 pounds of milk and 3,969 pounds of butterfat in 2,676 days.

Three cows in the VPI herd were recognized. One produced 107,884 pounds of milk and 4,198 pounds of butterfat in 2,597 days; another produced 106,863 pounds of milk and 3,760 pounds of butterfat in 2,015 days; and another produced 103,612 pounds of milk and 3,832 pounds of butterfat in 2,419 days.

Two of the cows were owned by Mrs. C. Leith Spedden, of Somerset. One produced 106,951 pounds of milk and 4,472 pounds of butterfat in 2,909 days, and the other produced 103,508 pounds of milk and 4,009 pounds of butterfat in 2,536 days.

According to the Holstein Friesian Association of America, since records have been kept a total of 8,642 Holsteins have reached the 100,000 mark. This volume of production represents about six times the lifetime production of an average dairy cow.

NEW LAW ON LIABILITY OF AUTO DRIVERS

Richmond, Oct. 2.- "The new Virginia laws concerning registration of uninsured motor vehicles becomes effective today, Wednesday, October 1," Comissioner of Motor Vehicles C. H. Lamb, announced.

On and after that date motor vehicles to be licensed in Virginia for the first time in 1958 will require the payment of a $15 additional fee unless satisfactory evidence is presented to the Division of Motor Vehicles that an automobile liability insurance policy covers the motor vehicle sought to be registered. "This means," said Mr. Lamb, "that to license a powered vehicle on and after October 1 effective date an applicant for registration must furnish evidence of an automobile liability insurance policy issued by a company licensed to do business in Virginia, with a minimum policy limits of at least $10/$20000 bodily injury and $1,000 property damage liability, or if the owner of the motor vehicle sought to be registered cannot furnish this evidence, which will be in the form of a certification accompanying an application for license, then the applicant for license must remit an uninsured owner's fee of $15 in addition to the proper license plates fee.'

The certification of insurance will be a simple statement which will show the name of the insurance company, not the name of the insurance agent or agency, the policy number and the effective date of the policy. It will also provide that the motor vehicle be identified by model year, make and identification number.

"Such inforamtion is necessary," said the Commissioner, "to allow a positive identification of the insurance coverage with the insurance carrier named in the certification."

"It should be thoroughly understood," explained Mr. Lamb, "that the payment of this $15 uninsured owner's fee does not provide such uninsured motor vehicle owner with any form of insurance whatsoever, but simply allows such a motor vehicle owner to license an uninsured motor vehicle."
